Berlin, 15 June 2020 – This year’s nominated solutions cover a very diverse range of fields of application, such as health and care, mobility, communications, media, arts and entertainment, public services, IoT, finance, agriculture and industry, human resources and education. Several finalists of the hackathons of the European Commission and the German government for the best solutions in the fight against the Coronavirus outbreak are among the nominees.

"We are delighted to have received so many great submissions this year, especially given that the Covid-19 pandemic has presented many of us with major challenges these last months," said Ake Rudolf, strategic director of the International Design Center Berlin, the organizer of the competition.

The UX Design Awards are a global competition for user and customer experience organized by the International Design Center Berlin (IDZ). The list of former winners reads like a who-is-who of the industry.
